

New Hampshire Gazette

In 1765, the New Hampshire Gazette was one of roughly two dozen newspapers in British colonial America. From Nova Scotia to the West Indies, these newspapers kept colonists up-to-date on political news from London. In August 1765, their biggest story was the Stamp Act, a law passed by Parliament to tax colonists in America.