

Jefferson to David Barrow

Jefferson wrote this letter to David Barrow, a white Virginian who had moved to Kentucky in hopes of escaping slavery. Barrow had sent Jefferson some of his anti-slavery writings. Jefferson described slavery as a "disease" that was not easily cured, in part because both masters and slaves needed "long and difficult preparation" for emancipation.