

Jefferson to Edward Coles

Jefferson wrote this letter to his kinsman and fellow planter Edward Coles, who had asked him to take a public stand against slavery. Jefferson agreed that slavery was wrong, but he looked to the younger generation to end it. Coles freed his slaves and moved to Illinois, where he led a successful effort to prevent the legalization of slavery.