

Jefferson to General Horatio Gates

In this letter, President Jefferson ranked the Louisiana Purchase as the proudest achievement of his administration. He believed that doubling the territory of the United States by adding fertile western lands would ensure the nation's prosperity for many future generations.