

Jefferson to John Adams

When Jefferson wrote this letter in 1819, the U.S. was in the middle of a severe financial crisis that ruined many Americans--including the former president. Yet Jefferson believed that Missouri's application for statehood, which raised the divisive issue of expanding slavery into the West, posed much more serious problems.