

Constitutional Convention Voting Record

This document records the votes on the final day of the Constitutional Convention in Philadelphia. Although many states sent more than one delegate to the convention, each state received only one vote on each resolution. The document shows that in the last vote the Constitution received the unanimous approval of all the states in attendance.