

Declaration and Resolves of the First Continental Congress

This document was issued by the First Continental Congress. In response to Parliament's passage of the Coercive Acts, 12 of the 13 colonies sent delegates to a meeting in Philadelphia to plan a strategy of united resistance against Britain. One of their most important actions was to call on colonists to stop exporting goods to England in addition importing goods from England.