

Association of the Sons of Liberty

In response to Parliament's passage of the Tea Act in 1773, New York merchants banded together and signed an agreement vowing not to import or sell East India Company Tea. Whereas Bostonians destroyed the tea by throwing it into Boston harbor, New Yorkers adopted a non-violent means of protesting the act.