

Bloody Butchery by the British Troops

This document is an account of the events at Concord, Massachusetts on April 19, 1775. The notice discusses the clash between British troops and American militia, portraying the encounter as a victory for the American cause of liberty. The forty coffins at the top of the page are a memorial to the forty Americans killed in the conflict.