

Declaration of the Anti-Slavery Convention

This document is the Declaration of Sentiments issued in Dec. 1833 by the first meeting of the National Anti-Slavery Society. It was later published in William Lloyd Garrison's abolitionist newspaper, THE LIBERATOR. Building on the principles of the American Revolution, the document demands an immediate end to slavery throughout the entire United States.