

Jefferson to Martha Jefferson

Jefferson wrote this letter to establish his daughter's study schedule during her stay in Philadelphia. Eleven-year-old Patsy Jefferson learned French, music, drawing, and dancing from tutors. She practiced reading and writing on her own. Jefferson expected her to write to him often so he could assess her progress.