

Jefferson to John Adams

While serving as minister to France in 1787, Jefferson exchanged a series of letters with Adams. This example provides a look into Jefferson's thoughts on both the state of European politics, the revolutionary movement in France, and the current state of the American Constitution.