Up to 1 month

Objectives

Overview

Through the voices of individuals working at Monticello, students will learn about Jefferson's passion for gardening and complete flower and vegetable experiments/projects. Students will also learn how to do calligraphy and construct a petit-format book similar to those that Jefferson read at his summer retreat, Poplar Forest.

Prior Knowledge

Students will use online resources at the Monticello classroom site and other related resources to complete the projects within this unit.

State Standards

PA Core Standards: Reading in History & Social Studies (6-8); Reading Informational Texts: CC.8.5.6-8.A,B,D-G,J; Writing in History & Social Studies (6-8); CC.8.6.6-8.A-I.; Reading in Science & Technology (6-8); CC.3.5.6-8C,F-I; Writing in Science & Technology (6-8); CC.3.6.6-8A-I.

Objectives/Learning Outcomes

The overall goal for this unit is for students to become independent, creative thinkers to achieve a final product for each section (create their own seed packets; complete a vegetable experiment; learn the art of calligraphy; and create their own petit-format book).

Technology Connections/outcomes

This section is coordinated with the Introduction to Project-Based Learning

And the following lessons on Jefferson's Gardens: A Landscape of Opportunities:

1. A Perpetuating Flower Garden
2. An Experimental Vegetable Garden
3. Jefferson: Creating Personal Space for Self-Reflection
4. The Art of Calligraphy

Additional Learning Outcomes

This unit is intended to be a long-term project-based learning experience in which students will assume the role of historians and utilize inquiry-based thinking skills similar to Jefferson.
